

Dr. Raymond Wong Provider Recognition Award

Named in recognition and memory of Dr. Raymond Wong's exemplary contributions as a health care provider, this award is presented to an outstanding individual who exemplifies excellence in clinical practice and leadership. He began his career working on an Indian Reservation and spent twenty years working for Hill Health Center, a clinic serving some of New Haven's poorest and sickest residents. Dr. Wong served as Hill Health Center's Chief of Internal Medicine and Coordinator of their tuberculosis project. He was also recognized by the Yale Department of Internal Medicine for his exemplary work supervising and teaching medical students and residents. Dr. Wong spent time in Haiti treating sick patients and in Leeway, treating AIDS patients in which he developed a sub specialty. Co-workers at Hill Health Center described him as a doctor who would go the extra mile for every patient.

- The New England Clinicians Forum (NECF) supports interdisciplinary health care team members in the delivery of accessible, high quality, community-based health care to all populations with special emphasis on the underserved. Each month the NECF Provider Recognition Program honors the hard work and commitment of one clinician who provides comprehensive primary health care to their community. Please take moment to fill out this nomination form to appreciate a colleague. The recipient will receive an award of appreciation and recognition on the NECF web site.

Eligibility to Nominate: Nominator must be a member of the New England Clinicians Forum. If not, please register at <http://www.neclinicians.org/CONmember.asp> and become a member - It's FREE!

- Nominee must be a practicing clinician in New England serving the underserved. This can be through a full-time/part-time position or a volunteer service.
- Nominee does not have to be a member of NECF to be considered but we encourage all to join.

To make a nomination please use the following link:

<http://fs19.formsite.com/isadmin/form579076676/index.html>.